Long-time Holistic Clinic Serving Low-Income Women with Cancer Celebrates Oakland Relocation with June 27th Open House

Oakland, CA – The Charlotte Maxwell Clinic (CMC) is celebrating its recent relocation with an Open House to friends, community supporters and partners, clients, and volunteers on Thursday, June 27th, at its new location at 411 30th Street, Suite 508, Oakland, CA 94609 across from Sutter Hospital. The event will take place from 4pm to 6pm.

“We are really grateful to have found a wonderful light-filled space that is still accessible to our clients,” says Clinic CEO yvonne charles. For more than 27 years, the CMC has been providing integrative cancer care to low-income women, free of charge in Oakland to reduce side effects and improve recovery from conventional cancer treatments such as radiation, chemotherapy and surgery. CMC delivers integrative medicine, including acupuncture and herbs, massage, Reiki and guided imagery, through a volunteer base of over 100 practitioners, alongside practical support such as grocery cards, emergency fund, and food pantry services to more than 220 underserved women in the greater Oakland community.

The Charlotte Maxwell Clinic (CMC) is named in memory of Charlotte Maxwell, a local social justice activist who, after being diagnosed with ovarian cancer, discovered an enhanced quality of life through the use of a variety of integrative medicine therapies. After her death in 1988, CMC opened in 1992 with a mission to offer integrative medicine therapies free of charge to women who would not otherwise be able to afford them. Over the years, CMC has grown as a result of community need, dedicated response from the practitioner community, and ongoing philanthropic and charitable support.
